Church News Items:

Starting September 21, we will offer a planned program during the church hour for children too young to attend the service. There will be a special theme each week with related activities, quiet time, and a snack. Babysitting will be provided for the very young. The program will be led by Helen Silver, with the assistance of other church members. Older young people are invited to attend the church service, and plans will be made for them to participate from time to time as ushers, readers, and leaders of worship. Young people can also be of help in working with those in Helen Silver's program.

From the Minister:

All of a sudden it is September. No matter what the weather is, things feel different after Labor Day. Summer is definitely over, even though its warmth and some of its activities will linger on for a few weeks. But the mood is different. People, along with plants, birds and animals, know that things are changing. The week before Labor Day I was talking with a friend who belongs to that group we now call "summer people". "This is a frantic week," she said. "Everything is coming to an end." At first I did not catch her meaning, since I did not feel frantic. But then, having been "summer people" myself for many years, I did. I felt a glow of satisfaction. I am not going anywhere, at least not right now, except to church on Sunday, September 7, and the Sundays following. Kay and I will both look forward to seeing you then. ---H.C.M.
